SERVIA'S RULERS SHOT TO DEATH IN ROYAL PALACE.

King Alexander and Queen Draga Assassinated By Direction of the Army Who Place New King on Throne.

Belgrade, Servia, June 11.—King Alexander and Queen Draga of Servia were shot to death last night in the Royal Palace. Besides the King and Queen Premier Markovitch and General Petrov, former Minister of War were also shot. The deed was done at the instigation of the army, among the high officers of which the plot of assassination was hatched. The King and Queen were killed outright. The army has proclaimed Peter Karageorgevitch King.

The assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga and their attendant officers, is the culmination of a stormy reign of 12 years in Servia.

Peter Rutsek, the foreign banker who is familiar with conditions in Servia for the past ten years, was shown the above cablegram this morning by a reporter for The Courier. He said after reading it: "It is no surprise. I expected it to happen. King Alexander was the son of the late King Milan, who abdicated from the throne of Servia 12 years ago because he was forced into that action by the people and army. Milan later was divorced from his Queen, the beautiful and good Natalia, mother of Alexander. Within the past year Milan died a drunkard's death in Paris. Queen Natalia is still living. Queen Draga was an actress and the wife of a professor when Alexander came to the throne. [illegible] A few years later he made her his queen much against the wishes of Queen Natalia, both on account of Draga's past and her age, she then being 10 or 15 years older than King Alexander, but a beautiful woman. The married life of King Alexander and Queen Draga was fraught with quarrels and scandals. Its tragic end is the result.

Servia is an independent monarchy, under the protecting wing of Russia, however. The new King will likely remain on the throne. Chosen by the army he can only be dethroned by it. The people of Servia have nothing to say in their choice of a ruler."

ESCAPES THE NOOSE.

Rats Anderson's Attorneys Accept Second Degree Verdict for Him.

NASH SANDERS WAS ACQUITTED

On Charge of Murder But Pleads Guilty to Aggravated Assault and Battery and Receiving Stolen Goods. Herman Vincent Pleads Guilty.

Uniontown, June 10.—Before Judge Reppert Wednesday morning the case of Rats Anderson and Nash Sanders, charged with the killing of Pietro Serafini near Fayette station was resumed.

The first witness called was County Detective Alex McBeth, who said he saw the defendants at New Haven on March [illegible] just after they had been arrested. He got two pocketbooks at Squire Berger's office, one from Anderson containing $1[illegible] and the other from Sanders containing $[illegible] [illegible] statement made to him was by Anderson who said he was walking down the railroad track from [illegible] Dunbar and Fayette station when he was met by two strangers [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

Dr. J. H. [illegible] [illegible] evidence.

Squire [illegible] [illegible] at [illegible] March [illegible] there with two [illegible] and [illegible] calibre revolvers [illegible] [illegible] $2.2[illegible] and [illegible] took the men to New Haven and [illegible] the office of Squire Berger. Sanders denied being [illegible] said Anderson could tell all about the shooting. Anderson and the [illegible] statement to Duncan that [illegible] McBeth.

Dr. A. W. Warren of Dunbar [illegible] a bullet from Anderson's arm March 29. [illegible] for him about midnight. He told him Anderson had been shot. The bullet entered the [illegible] above the wrist taking an upward course and lodging near elbow.

Wednesday afternoon Joe Ronney was the first witness called. He said he lived in the store house between the railroads near Fayette station. About 11 that night he heard a knock and upon opening the door a man fell in in the door. He was carried in and placed on a bed. He was wounded and was bleeding badly.

Henrico Telino who worked with the hospital [illegible] Pietro Serafini and talked with him at the hospital. The [illegible] told witness that he was met on the track by a colored man who [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and then for 50 cents. As he did not comply with these demands he was told to throw up his hands and at the point of a gun $30 was taken from him and he was then shot.

L. S. Kelly of Dunbar saw the two colored men pass his store the evening of March 28 going toward Connellsville. J. C. [illegible] saw them in Nelson's restaurant the same evening.

Charles Hair and Herman Pisha, night watchmen at Fayette station both testified as to hearing two shots fired about 11 o'clock that night.

Mrs. Serafini identified the revolver and pocketbook of her late husband and said the pocketbook contained $[illegible] that day.

W. C. McKean opened for the defense telling the jury that while Anderson did the shooting he did it in self-defense but that Sanders had nothing to do with it.

Rats Anderson the defendant was called. He said he was 2[illegible] years old and was born in Tennessee having been here about two years. He and Sanders had been at the restaurant at Dunbar early the evening of the shooting but he left Sanders there going home alone down the B. & O. track. Near the bridge he met a man and went up to him to see if he could recognize him. He said "Hello" and put his hand on the man's shoulder. The man jumped back and drew a revolver and shot. Witness received the bullet in his right arm but he changed his gun to his left hand and shot once. He then went home. He denied asking the man for tobacco or money and denied touching him after the shooting.

Nash Sanders the other defendant said he and Anderson were in Dunbar early in the evening but that he had left him there and gone home. He was in bed when Anderson came home and said he had been shot. Witness got up and went to Dunbar for a doctor. He denied being with Anderson at the time of the shooting and denied all knowledge of it.

At the conclusion of the testimony

A RED HOT FIGHT

On Between Gentlemen of the Dorty Factions in Westmoreland County.

[illegible] have the [illegible] [illegible] the Dorty and Rigg faction in the [illegible] county [illegible] [illegible] will have [illegible] at the polls [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Saturday.

[illegible] Democratic [illegible] [illegible] control of the county [illegible] will [illegible] Saturday result.

[illegible] [illegible] soliciting votes in the rural districts. The [illegible] which has always [illegible] editorial [illegible] announcing Captain John [illegible] his followers [illegible] follows:

"While the Greer [illegible] who has dominated and worked the party for years or the 10,000 votes comprising the file and rank of Westmoreland Democracy shall control the county organization is the question to be decided at the primary election next Saturday. The course to be pursued now [illegible] by every loyal Democrat with [illegible] of the party at heart [illegible] [illegible] the debates and disaster brought to the party call eloquently for the voters to come to the rescue now and the recent outrage perpetrated by the State committee is in itself sufficient cause for every voter to turn out and to cut the insult by electing county committeemen who will stand for the principles and practice of fair play and majority rule. This can be easily accomplished by every voter doing his plain duty."

No candidates have announced for District Attorney, Prothonotary or Clerk of Courts and they will be chosen at the meeting of the return judges next Tuesday.

BIG BI-PRODUCT PLANT.

Semet Solvay Company to Operate on Extensive Scale Near Chicago.

F. R. Hazard of Syracuse, N. Y., representing a syndicate of capitalists closely allied with the Semet Solvay Company of Pittsburg, has bought for $17[illegible] two tracts of land in the Calumet district near Chicago on which to establish a coke plant to cost about $500,000.

The company it is said will make use of the coke ovens known as the Semet Solvay with which the by-products are recovered. About 120 ovens are to be built at first, the number to be largely increased later.

The Semet Solvay Company of Pittsburg referred to is likely the Semet Solvay Company of Syracuse, N. Y., owners of the by-product ovens at Dunbar which have been in successful operation for several years. They obtain their coal for the 50 ovens there from the Hill Farm mine of the Dunbar Furnace Company, who take their coke. The Semet Solvay Company taking their by-products from the plant.

The dance given by the F. S. L. Club in Marietta Hall Wednesday evening was a pleasant affair and was largely attended. About 25 couples were present.

A NEW COKE OUTLET.

Survey from Hickman Run to Everson for a Better Grade.

STARTED BY B. & O. ENGINEERS.

Would Eliminate Heavy Grade on Pleasant Branch and Facilitate Shipments and Make Loading of Trains Bound West.

[illegible] Helmick [illegible] Francis [illegible] Stewart [illegible]

[illegible] of Coke, D. [illegible] Smith [illegible]

The plan of the company is to [illegible] Everson to [illegible] the Mount [illegible] [illegible]

At present all of the [illegible] men [illegible] from the Mt. Pleasant branch must be taken to Hickman Run to be switched before the trains are made up. The new route would be by way of Jimtown and Spring Grove striking the main line at Hickman Run. The probability can be seen at a glance.

The Mt. Pleasant & Broad Ford railroad now owned by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad is one of the oldest railroads in the coke region. It was incorporated April 6, 1870 with a capital stock of $200,000. The incorporators were Daniel Shupe, C. S. Overholt, J. P. Jordan, William J. Hitchman, Joseph R. Stauffer, A. O. Tinstman, Israel Painter, O. P. Markle and James Neel, all residents of Scottdale, Mt. Pleasant, Broad Ford or West Newton. The line was hurried to completion and was opened for traffic February 10, 1871. One of the first important business operations of Henry Clay Frick was to purchase a majority of the capital stock of the road for the old Pittsburg & Connellsville, and soon after that it was leased by the Pittsburg & Connellsville and the case was absorbed with that road when the Baltimore & Ohio came into control [illegible] [illegible] years ago.

Historian Hassle Honored

Edgar Wakefield Hassler, a cousin of Attorney Thomas R. Wakefield of Uniontown, was on Monday night elected city clerk of Pittsburg after a hard fight in councils. Mr. Hassler is a well known newspaper man, being at present connected with the Dispatch. He is an authority on the early history of Western Pennsylvania and the author of "Old Westmoreland," a History of Western Pennsylvania During the Revolution. He is a great grandson of John Morton, one of the Pennsylvania signers of the Declaration of Independence.

STILLWAGON'S LEGACY.

It Is Now Overdue, But Is Tied Up by Legal Attachments.

Strenuous circumstances have surrounded the final settlement of the estate of the late J. D. Stillwagon of which Harry Goldsmith is executor. Charles R. Stillwagon, one of the heirs who had about $9,000 in cash coming to him, has been unable to secure this amount on account of attachments that have been served upon him and Mr. Goldsmith by the attorneys of Rockwell Marietta, one of Stillwagon's creditors.

Monday June 8 was the time that Mr. Goldsmith was to have paid over the money. He went to Uniontown for that purpose when he discovered that proceedings had commenced to hold up a portion of the money alleged to be covered by notes held by Mr. Marietta. That night Sheriff S. L. Frock made a quick trip to Connellsville at midnight to serve the attachment papers on Mr. Goldsmith and Constable Stillwagon. Whether or not these will be available is a matter on which there is some difference of opinion.

The will of the late J. D. Stillwagon allows his son Charles monthly stipend for a certain length of time or until the final settlement of the estate when he was to come in for his full share. [illegible] distinctly stated that this final legacy shall not be available for the payment of any debts that the heir shall have contracted. It is said that on the strength of this legacy Stillwagon borrowed considerable money from Rockwell Marietta giving him notes sometimes for a figure in excess of the money borrowed. Mr. Marietta's attorneys say their claim however is for the net amounts only

DAVE FORSYTHE DEAD

Found Cold in Death in Bed at Dunbar This Morning.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED BY SOME

Friends Allege the Dead Man Was Given Knock Out Drops—Was the Biggest Member of the Fighting Tenth Regiment.

David Forsythe, known throughout the coke region as "Big Dave," who served through the Spanish-American war with the Fighting Tenth Regiment in the Philippines, was found dead in his bed at Dunbar this morning. Indications point to the fact that he was poisoned.

Forsythe had been drinking Wednesday and spent the day around Dunbar with companions. He returned at a late hour Wednesday night and went to bed. This morning when his wife called him he was stone dead. His body was badly swollen. It is known that he had some bitter enemies in Dunbar and it is hinted that some of these doctored the whiskey that the unfortunate man had been drinking.

A post mortem examination of the body will probably be made [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] or not there [illegible]

The [illegible] lived in Dunbar [illegible] [illegible] his [illegible] in Dawson. He leaves a wife and two children [illegible] arrangements have not yet been made. Members of the Philippine war veterans will probably have charge of the services.

David Forsythe was a member of the National Guard of Pennsylvania before the breaking out of the Spanish-American war. His gigantic figure was a very familiar one in the first row of Company D. The record of Philippine soldiers shows that he was enrolled as a member of Company D April 27, 1898, mustered in May 1[illegible], 1898, mustered out with company August 22, 1899.

ITALIAN BOY KILLED.

Crushed to Death Under a Train at Everson.

Everson, June 11.—An Italian boy about eight years of age was killed Tuesday night while attempting to cross under a train of cars on the side track in South Everson. Just as he started to go under the cars an engine started the train and caught him cutting him to pieces. His twin brother tried to reach him but was too late. His mother who was quickly informed ran to the scene and the sight caused her to faint and go into convulsions and she is not expected to live from the shock.

Edward Martin of Sherrick's station died on Monday night after a long illness from dropsy. He was aged [illegible] years and leaves a wife and three young daughters, the eldest of whom is only four years old. The remains will be brought to the Scottdale Roman Catholic Church on the afternoon B. & O. train when funeral services will be held followed by interment in the Catholic Cemetery. Mr. Martin was well known and highly respected and his family and friends have the deep sympathy of the whole community.

BACK TO BATTLEFIELDS

State Making Arrangements to Transport Veterans to Scene of War.

Harrisburg, June 11.—Adjutant General Stewart has sent to the Grand Army posts of the State circulars announcing the preliminary arrangements to the transportation of the 77th Pennsylvania Volunteers survivors to the dedication of the monument to the regiment at Shiloh next October, also the surviving veterans who were confined in the Confederate prison at Andersonville to attend the dedication of the Pennsylvania memorial in the National Cemetery at Andersonville next October and the survivors of the [illegible] and 7[illegible] Volunteers to attend the dedication of the monuments erected to these organizations on the battlefields of Wauhatchie and Missionary Ridge next November.

Free transportation will be furnished to all veterans entitled to it from their place of residence by the nearest route to the different points.

Gets Jackson's Place

Senator Penrose called upon President Roosevelt this week and secured the latter's promise to appoint James Verner Long of Pittsburg as United States consul at Patras, Greece. Mr. Long was consul at Florence under President Harrison and was removed under President Cleveland. At present he resides on Howe street, Pittsburg. The consulship at Patras pays $1,500 a year. This is the position which Prof. Frank W. Jackson of Mt. Pleasant, formerly of Ohiopyle, a short time ago resigned and returned to America.

THE ST. LOUIS FLOOD.

Eleven Lives Sacrificed. Property Damaged Beyond Estimate.

RIVER RISES WITHOUT WARNING

Industry Paralyzed in East St. Louis—The Vast Railroad Yards Outlined By Half-Submerged Cars and Locomotives.

St. Louis, June 11. — Almost two thirds of East St. Louis, Ills., is under from 2 to 15 feet of water. Between sunset and dawn 11 lives were sacrificed to the waters, and damage which no man attempted to estimate, had been done to property.

Probably never before in the history of the country has a more valiant fight been made by brave men, with defeat staring them in the face to protect lives and property than has been made by the citizens of East St. Louis. When the rising Mississippi began to threaten the city last Thursday morning Mayor Silas Cook ordered men to work to construct sand bag levees at once. The river rose higher and more men were employed. Citizens of the best classes worked side by side with the laborers. Since Thursday morning 5,000 men, under the leadership of Mayor Cook, without sleep, with little rest and food snatched at intervals, have toiled unceasingly to strengthen levees, and to do everything possible to save the city. Not a wheel of industry is turning in East St. Louis. The smokeless chimneys of manufacturing plants stand lifeless, while the flood whirls at the foundations.

The vast railroad yards are outlined by hundreds of half-submerged cars, and here and there stand locomotives only half visible.

Huge grain elevators stand surrounded by a veritable sea.

To the south beyond the railway yard, are thousands of homes, mainly humble cottages owned by laborers, and containing their all, submerged to the eaves.

In northern East St. Louis the description is repeated, but not on so large a scale.

The business portion of the city and the district containing the better residences is still intact "but for how long?" is the question. Broadway, running from Eads bridge east to the city limits a wide street walled with stone 15 feet high, divides the city in halves. More than 10 feet of water is pressing against Broadway from the south end, and in some places is sweeping through in streams as thick as a man's body. If Broadway shall break the water will rush over much of the city until Missouri avenue, running parallel one block north, is encountered.

Along the river front to the west a levee of sandbags from two to six feet high and two miles long, keeps the river out.

Without warning the river suddenly began to rise. The city was made safe along the river front but suddenly a new danger menaced. Word was received that the Illinois Central embankment skirting the river along the southern boundary of the city was threatening to give way. Couriers were sent out on horseback and afoot to shout warnings to the inhabitants of the southern half of the city. Carloads of sandbags were rushed to the place and work was hurriedly begun. Accustomed to warnings of impending danger, the inhabitants did not leave their homes. Higher and higher crept the water until a thin stream began pouring over the embankment and suddenly it broke.

News of the inundation excited the people of St. Louis early in the morning. Rumors of many deaths started thousands of sightseers across the Eads bridge. But the authorities prepared to turn back an influx of curious people. At both ends of the bridge ropes were stretched and police were stationed with orders to allow no ingress into the city of spectators who would only hinder the work of rescue. East St. Louis was practically shut off from the world. Even refugees who wanted to go to St. Louis were stopped, and unless they could show that they were sure of being taken care of by friends they were turned back to the relief offered by the city.

Newspaper photographers and persons with small cameras were dealt with unceremoniously.

Riot guns were collected by Chief of Police Purdy and were given out to-night to guards to patrol the streets where furniture is stacked, and to patrol the sandbag levees. Any thieves or possible levee cutters are to be shot down instantly. Martial law has not been proclaimed officially, but East St. Louis is practically being governed under such a condition during the flood and there is no place for idle and curious persons.

Explosion of Giant Powder.

Leadville Col., June 11.—Two hundred and fifty pounds of giant powder exploded at the shaft house of the Fortuna mine. Five men were entombed in the mine until late this afternoon, when all were rescued excepting Superintendent Patrick Barker who was found dead in the bottom of the shaft with his head cut off. It is believed that he was struck by falling timbers.

THE JETT-WHITE MURDER TRIAL

They Are Being Tried Jointly—Indictment Charging Them With Conspiracy to Murder.

Jackson, Ky., June 11.—The third day of the trial of Curtiss Jett and Thomas White, for the murder of Attorney J. B. Marcum, was marked by the evidence of B. Lewen, the first and leading witness of the commonwealth. Jett and White are being tried jointly, the indictment charging them with conspiracy to murder. It is charged that White entered the court house while Marcum and Ewen were standing together and as he passed them gave the signal to fire. Ewen testified to seeing White just before and after Marcum was shot, and to seeing Jett just after Marcum was carried out of the court house. Ewen's testimony corroborated the statements he had made previously regarding both prisoners and he withstood the most rigid cross-examination.

Other witnesses examined during the day were Judge J. C. Bache, John M. Patrick, Kelly Kash, County Attorney Blanton and William Combs, a farmer. Their testimony was confirmatory of that given by Ewen, and was not shaken in the cross-examination. In the morning, when the witnesses were ordered out of the court room, attorneys for the defendants asked that County Judge Hargis be allowed to remain.

On the objections of attorneys for the commonwealth being sustained Judge Hargis retired with the other witnesses. When the court reconvened in the afternoon the daughter of County Judge Hargis, the leader of the dominant feudists, occupied a seat beside the prisoners. At the afternoon session attorneys for the defendants moved to dispense with the presence of troops in the court room and were overruled. Inspector Hines, from Frankfort, arrived under orders from Governor Beckham. It is generally believed that he will report how the trial is conducted so far as judge, prosecutor, jury and officials are concerned, and much interest is taken in his presence.

WOMAN SHOT FROM AMBUSH

Great Excitement Has Been Aroused The Police Are Seeking for Harry Artis.

Uniontown, Pa., June 11.—Great excitement has been aroused by developments which seem to point to a heinous attempt to murder Mrs. Chas Ingles, of this city. Some time ago she was shot from ambush and seriously wounded, and Harry Artis, of Fairchance, was brought before a justice in the case, but Mrs. Ingles did not appear against him.

It is now charged that, a few days ago, Artis talked with two colored men, H. O Grady and Thomas Walker, offering them a gold watch and $50 to kill Mrs. Ingles and providing them with an ironwood club for the purpose. Artis is alleged to have said to the negroes, "You will know her, as she limps. I shot her once, and intended to kill her, but I shot too low." The negroes have turned the gold watch and the club over to County Detective McBeth and told the story as above related. There is a warrant out for the arrest of Artis, who has disappeared.

Secretary Root at West Point.

West Point, N. Y., June 11.—Secretary of War Root arrived here and will deliver the diplomas to the graduating class of the military academy. He witnessed the first class parties in its last dress parade and afterwards listened to the address of Col. Treat, commandant of cadets, who welcomed the graduates as commissioned officers of the army. Lieutenant General Miles was also present at the ceremonies. The graduating hop at Memorial hall was, in point of attendance the largest and also the most brilliant within the history of the academy.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

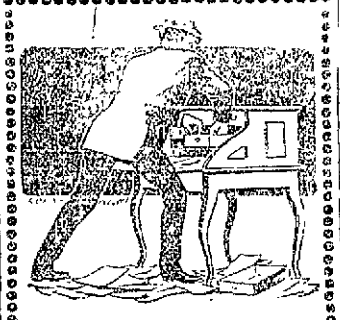

Harrisburg June 11.—Thomas Powell a negro aged 25 years, committed suicide, after shooting and seriously wounding Bessie Keesey, a white girl, aged 19 years. The Keesey girl formerly lived in Marietta, where she became acquainted with Powell, who came to Harrisburg with her recently. Powell called at the place where the girl was working, and, it is alleged, they quarreled because she told him he must stay away from her. He left, threatening to kill her, and returned some time afterward and shot her twice in the back, and then put a bullet through his brain.

New Model Field Gun for Militia.

Washington, June 11.—General Crozier, with the approval of Acting Secretary Sanger, is making preparations to supply the militia of the several states with the new model field gun and other artillery equipments in accordance with appropriations made for that purpose in the last Congress. These guns will be of the latest model, and the same as those supplied to the regular artillery of the army. It is expected that eventually $1,000,000 will be expended for artillery for the militia.

Killed By Lightning.

West Chester Pa., June 11.—Sharpless Baker, a farmer, who occupied the farm of Thomas Brown, a short distance south of this place, was instantly killed by lightning. During the heaviest portion of the storm Baker started across a field, carrying an umbrella with a metal handle. A bolt struck it and the current passed through his body. He was dead when picked up.

WEATHER FORECAST.

For Western Pennsylvania—Fair on Thursday and Friday; light to fresh north to northeast winds.

SHAMEFUL!

The 121st anniversary of the sacrifice of Colonel William Crawford sees no decent reverence for his memory manifested among the selfish-spirited, small-souled, money-grubbing people of the community he founded in the wilderness over a century ago, and in defense of which he went unflinchingly to torture and death.

Is it meanness of public spirit, or is it the strenuous life, that leaves us no time to think of anything but our own business and our own pleasures, that causes us to neglect in a manner so shameful the memory of our illustrious dead?

NO NEED OF JURIES.

The last two murder trials on the criminal calendar were not permitted to reach the jury the attorneys for the prosecution and the defense agreeing between themselves upon the verdict, after the evidence had been heard. A third trial today resulted in the defendant pleading guilty with the understanding that the Court should fix the degree of crime.

It has become a common saying that there is nothing more uncertain than the verdict of a jury. This is the chief ground of objection urged against the jury system, and it must be confessed that it has some weight. It is, however, a pessimistic view; and, until something better than the jury system is offered, it is the part of wisdom to cling to it and bear with its infirmities.

We do not mean to assert that the attorneys were afraid of the verdict of the juries in these cases; it may have been that they only anticipated the verdicts and desired to save themselves the mental effort of long and exhaustive speeches.

But if it is to become a custom for the lawyers to decide the case after the evidence is in, we need not argue the jury system any further; it is evident that we stand in no need of it.

FIGHTING OVER DRY BONES.

When a political party becomes so utterly demoralized by repeated and overwhelming defeats that it is without hope; when its rank and file are so dead to ambition that its primaries fail to attract candidates, and nominations have to be made by appointment; when its empty honors go begging; when they seek the man and he flees from them; when there is nothing left but vain hopes, it is hard to conceive why intelligent men should fight like cats and dogs over the dry bones.

We can understand why ambitious or thrifty men will strive for the leadership of a successful party with its power and emoluments, but there is neither honor nor profit in the bossship of the Democratic party of Westmoreland county, over which there is now so strenuous and sweated a struggle.

"There's no disputing about tastes," however. Some people play ping-pong and golf, while others more unregenerate play poker and the races. The game of politics may be just as fascination and just as unprofitable.

NOT ASLEEP.

The rejuvenation of the Mt. Pleasant & Broad Ford railroad by its owner, the B. & O. railroad, indicates that the latter company takes no stock in the theory that the business along this branch is in the period of its final decadence.

It is true there are some old coke plants that have been abandoned, and some others that will not last many years longer, but there is more general traffic, and there is also the possibilities of large development by extensions.

The present B. & O. management is not asleep. There is still some coal in the northern end of the Connellsville region as well as in the southern end.

There has been a change of administration in Servia and with it the usual revolting story of assassination. However, until we succeed in breaking up the Kentucky method of conducting elections and declaring results, we are not at liberty to boast overmuch of our "peaceful methods."

The million-dollar by-product coke plant at Chicago will not seriously threaten the Connellsville coke region. There will not be a million ovens built.

Pennsylvania will pay the fare of its veterans back to the battlefields. It would be a mean and niggard and unpatriotic citizen who would object to this action. The old veterans will not be with us much longer. The white crown of age is upon them. One by one they are being mustered out of life's service to the final rest of the grave. The State and the Nation whom they defended owes them all the honor and all the aid they extend.

"Big Dave" Forsythe escaped the deadly dangers of the heathen Philippines only to get the "knock-out" in enlightened and civilized Fayette.

Connellsville is becoming quite a church convention town. This is due to the fact that it is centrally located and convenient of access; has more and better churches and hotels than any other town in the coke region; and, lastly and by no means the least important, its progressive and hospitable people.

As a result of the Mississippi floods we are told that the prices of meat will advance. It is difficult to trace the apparently intimate relation between high water and high beef.

Historian Hassler will help to make some new history in his capacity as City Clerk. He has been giving us a good deal of the old and perhaps the stock is running low.

Races are announced by the management of the Uniontown fair grounds. The people up there don't like to be told of the wickedness of their town, but Editor Likins of the People's Tribune and some more of us good people will positively not compromise with the devil.

Uniontown has one decided advantage over Connellsville, namely, an immune health officer, one who has had both smallpox and yellow fever.

Judge Nathaniel Ewing possesses in the highest degree all the qualifications that go to make up an ideal President of the State Bar Association, and we have no doubt the members of that association will recognize and take advantage of that fact.

With the able assistance of the Labor Carnival, Uniontown may reasonably hope to have a hot time on the Glorious Fourth.

Young Blood in the Banks.

The News.

The time was, but is no more, when none but the oldest heads sat at the helms of our financial institutions. A notable change has come about and Connellsville is a modern example. Our banks are largely controlled by young blood. The active operations are performed by middle-aged and younger men. What today holds good in finance there so holds good in other lines of business. It has been clearly demonstrated that the energy, ambition and push comes from the young man and business enterprises are quick to apprehend this fact.

The Burning of Colonel Wm. Crawford.

Near Upper Sandusky, Ohio, June 11th, 1782.

Colonel William Crawford, the first settler and the real founder of Connellsville and New Haven, commanded the ill-fated expedition against the hostile Indians at Sandusky, O. His regiment was recruited from Western Pennsylvania, principally from what is now Westmoreland, Fayette, Washington and Greene counties. They engaged the Indians and the British near Upper Sandusky, June 4, 1782. They were outnumbered, but fought bravely and with decided advantage until dark. On the following day a desultory fight was kept up with no decisive results. In the evening it was learned that the enemy had been reinforced by large bodies of Indians and that another body of British soldiers had arrived from Detroit with two field pieces and a mortar. A council of war was held and it was decided to retreat. In his anxiety to protect his men, Colonel Crawford kept in the rear, where he was captured, taken back and burned at the stake with all the horrid torture that fiendish wit could invent. Dr. Knight, the surgeon of the regiment, witnessed his torture and death, and from his description the above illustration was made.

The spot is marked by a monument erected by the Pioneer Association of Wyandotte County. It is on the east bank of the Big Tymochtee creek. The Association meets there every year to honor the memory of the brave but unfortunate Pennsylvanian who carried the banner of expansion into what was then the Boundless West.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE

Of Redstone Presbytery Union in Session in Connellsville Today.

CLOSE OF THE BAPTIST MEETING

Addresses of Prominent Ministers and Church Workers—Delegates to Convention Praise Arrangements and Treatment by Local Members

The fi[illegible] annual convention of the Young People's Union Redstone Presbytery met in the Presbyterian Church this morning. Delegates were enrolled from 17 churches in the presbytery. There was a short praise service followed by a conference on the condition of the several societies represented. Mrs George Hoey of McKeesport sang "Nearer Still Nearer." The audience adjourned to the chapel where lunch was served. Uniontown, McKeesport, Merrittstown, McClellandtown, Belle Vernon, Carmichael, Glassport, Elizabeth, Circleville, Sutersville and Sewickley are represented. Tonight Dr Edward S Young will address the meeting.

The Wednesday afternoon session of the Baptist Association began with a general review of the work of the Baptist Young People's Union. Rev H Madtes of Sharpsburg presided over this part of the session and a number of addresses were made. The reports were satisfactory in the extreme showing that the Young People's Union is enlarging the work and influence of the church to a marked degree.

The devotional service was conducted by Rev F H Kohler and then the unfinished business was called for. After hearing a number of reports pertaining to home mission work the people listened with rapt attention to Dr R H Moseley who has charge of the work in Eastern Cuba. Dr Moseley told in a most thrilling way of the land, the people and the magnificent opportunities for missionary work. This [illegible] the most magnificent soil in the world and the immigrants from all parts of the world settling themselves there. The [illegible] will gradually be worked into the political fabric and [illegible] some day Cuba will see annexation to our own government. American capitalists are investing largely in Cuban property with a view to developing the resources of the country. There is a great field in Cuba for missionaries and the few churches already established are overcrowded with people anxious to hear the gospel.

Following Dr Moseley's talk came the address of Mrs Ida Craighead of Assam India and Rev J M Foster of Swatow China. These missionaries interested the audience very much by their accounts of the church's work in these foreign lands of which little is known especially of China. Mrs H N Jones who was to have delivered an address on Some Secrets of Success was unable to be present.

In the evening a large audience was present and the session was opened with an illustrated praise service. Scenes from the life of Christ were thrown by a stereopticon upon one side of a large screen and the words of appropriate hymns for each scene were placed beside the pictures. The church was darkened and the audience led by the organ sang each hymn from the words on the screen. Rev F S Dobbins of Philadelphia gave an illustrated lecture on foreign missions.

There were 200 delegates and visitors in attendance. A great many of them expressed themselves as delighted with the new Baptist meeting house.

The pastor and congregation of the Connellsville church desire to express their heartfelt thanks to all those of other denominations for whatever assistance they rendered to make the entertaining of this large body of people a success.

PUT IT OUT

Test Made of a Patent Fire Extinguisher on Wednesday

Charles Hobson and J Joseph Gibson representing the Excelsior Fire Extinguisher Company of Homestead gave a demonstration of their dry powder fire extinguisher on a vacant lot on Apple street Wednesday afternoon. A very hot fire was built out of wood tar oil gasoline etc and this was extinguished in a very short time by the use of the extinguisher.

The flames were blazing to a height of 25 feet and the demonstrators controlled the flames in three seconds by the use of the powder which creates carbonic acid gas that makes combustion impossible. A crowd of about 100 people witnessed the demonstration and many orders for the extinguishers were taken.

Straw Hats Are Plentiful

Straw hats seem to be more popular this season than ever before and great numbers of them are seen in all styles shapes and sizes. The Panama hat is very popular but owing to its cost not so many of the genuine are worn. But some of the cheaper grades and clever imitations are worn extensively. Soft felt hats are also worn largely this summer.

A CRISIS AVERTED.

Premier Balfour Temporarily Smoothes Over Cabinet Differences.

HE MAKES AN IMPASSIONED PLEA

With the Exception of Some Irreconcilable Malcontents the Union Party is Greatly Relieved at the Outcome of the Debate

London June 11 —By a dexterous and extraordinary speech Premier Balfour temporarily smoothed over the differences in the cabinet relieved Colonial Secretary Chamberlain of any necessity of resigning and for the moment averted a crisis which threatened the Unionist party This Mr Balfour accomplished without committing the government either to protection or free trade though the effect of his speech will generally be taken to mean that the tariff issue is to be shelved for the present Henry Chaplin's amendment which gave rise to the most interesting debate of the present parliament was defeated by the overwhelming majority of 393 votes composed of Unionists Liberals Irish members Mr Chaplin's adherents and almost all the followers of the government, while many others of the Conservative party abstained from voting

It was half past ten o clock when Premier Balfour sprang to his feet to reply to the taunts of the opposition and appeals from his own party

For two days the House of Commons has rang with echoes of discussion within the cabinet and dissatisfaction without The premier was loudly cheered He had scarcely commenced to deal with Mr Chaplin's amendment before he was interrupted by a hurricane of applause and ironical cheers at the entry of Mr Chamberlain who had been absent hitherto throughout the evening The colonial secretary dropped into his accustomed place The house was now packed with peers members of the house and spectators as it has not been since the days of home rule and they waited and listened in tense expectation

In a whimsical vein Mr Balfour explained that the only reason that the corn tax was put on was because the government wanted money and the only reason it was taken off was because the government wanted money no longer

Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman the Liberal leader appealed for an opportunity for the house to more fully discuss the issue raised The members of the house trooped into the lobby to vote against Henry Chaplin's amendment the general comment being Balfour has saved Chamberlain '

The colonial secretary himself, jubilant said Our friend the enemy is nonplussed this time

With the exception of some irreconcilable malcontents the Unionist party is greatly relieved by the outcome of the debate, all the members expressing gladness that the crisis was passed at the same time believing that the same cabinet could not long continue to embrace such opposites on the fiscal policy of Great Britain as Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and Chancellor of the Exchequer Ritchie

Admires American Energy

Berlin June 11— It is only Americans that meet my wants is one of the latest utterances of Emperor William circulating in army and government circles The Emperor spoke these words recently according to the Tageblatt while dining with the officers of one of his favorite Silesian regiments and the thought pleased the emperor so much that he has frequently repeated it in other forms since then It is pointed out that the visit of the Prussian finance minister Baron Von Rheinbaben, to the United States, attracts unusual attention among the initiated because of the emperor's admiration for American energy and practical insight, and it is assumed that his majesty designs giving the minister larger tasks for which his American observations will be especially useful

WILL HAVE TO SERVE SENTENCE

Sentenced to Be Hanged on the First Trial But Supreme Court Granted a New One

Raleigh N C June 11 —James Wilcox the murderer of Nellie Cropsey of Elizabeth City will have to serve his sentence of 30 years in the state prison here On his first trial he was sentenced to be hanged but the supreme court gave him a new trial because the spectators at the trial made a demonstration when Wilcox's lawyer [illegible] to speak On the second trial in a [illegible] county he was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to serve 30 years in the penitentiary This judgment the supreme court affirmed

The defendant's attorney on the second appeal urged that most of the evidence was insufficient to have been submitted to the jury and that the suicide theory was as reasonable as any other one maintaining that the deceased had the opportunity the motive and the time to drown herself

The supreme court in its opinion said that there were several serious difficulties in the way of endorsement of these views the principal one being that Miss Cropsey would have had to wade 75 feet from shore to reach water four feet deep While her affections may have been trifled with the court thought all the matters properly had been submitted to the jury and it could not say the jury's conclusions were incorrect

MAYOR MUST APPEAR IN COURT

True Bill Found Against City Executive for Removing Soldiers Without Cause

Pittsburg, June 11 — William B Hays mayor of Pittsburg will have to answer at the bar of the criminal court of Allegheny county at this term to the indictment handed down yesterday by the grand jury charging him with violating the law of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania which prohibits the discharge of an old soldier without cause The prosecutor is John C Haymaker district attorney and a recent competitor of Mayor Hays for the office which the latter holds The prosecuting witness will be Samuel Moore a resident of the Sixth ward and a battle scarred veteran of the Civil war who was removed from the position of ordinance officer by Mayor Hays on March 31 for political reasons

Upon the result of this case depend the positions of 75 old soldiers who were removed by the present city and county administrations for political reasons

The case will attract attention all over the state and in other states as it is the first time in Pennsylvania that a test has been made of the power of state, county or municipal authorities to remove old soldiers from public positions with an act on the statute books prohibiting the same

LOCKOUT STILL IN FULL FORCE

Eighty five Hundred Men in Pittsburg in Idleness—Employers Stand Firm

Pittsburg June 11 —The situation in the lockout by the contractors of Pittsburg against the stonemasons and bricklayers unions is becoming quite serious and judging from the determined attitude of the builders it is apparent that nothing short of a complete settlement of the existing labor warfare will end the lockout About 8 500 men are locked out

The Master Builders association yesterday decided that the exigencies of the situation rendered it an opportune time for the formation of an international association of builders To further this end a convention of delegates from builders organizations in various parts of the United States will be held in the Hotel Henry the week beginning June [illegible] The object of the organization will be to oppose all unjust demands by labor unions and to settle all disputes arising between employer and employe It is estimated that contracts amounting to at least $10 000 000 will be affected by the lockout and that the wage earners will lose about $25 000 a day

Verdict of Not Guilty

Columbus June 11 — A jury in the United States court brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Ivor Hughes a Columbus attorney charged with using the mails with intent to defraud The indictment against him arose out of his connection with the divorce suit of John P Miller against Mrs Anna T Miller both of whom are now serving sentences in the penitentiary having been found guilty on similar charges

CHAPTER XXVIII

AS the elevator in the big building was taking Rayburn Miller up to the offices of the Southern Land and Lumber company many reflections passed hurriedly through his mind.

"You are going to get the usual cold shoulder from Wilson," he mused, "but he'll put it up against something about as warm as he's touched in many a day. If you don't make him squirm it will be only because you don't want to."

Wilson was busy at his desk looking over bills of lading, receipts and other papers and now and then giving instructions to a typewriter in the corner of the room.

"Ah, how are you, Miller?" he said indifferently, giving the caller his hand without rising. "Down to see the city again, eh?"

Rayburn leaned on the top of the desk and knocked the ashes from his cigar with the tip of his little finger.

"Partly that and partly business," he returned carelessly.

"Two birds, eh?"

"That's about it. I concluded you were not coming up our way soon, and so I decided to drop in on you."

"Yes, glad you did." Wilson glanced at the papers on his desk and frowned. "Wish I had more time at my disposal. I'd run up to the club with you and show you my Kentucky thoroughbreds, but I really am rushed today, particularly."

"Oh, I haven't a bit of time to spare myself. I take the afternoon train home. The truth is I came to see you for my clients, the Bishops."

"Ah, I see." Wilson's face clouded over by some mechanical arrangement known only to himself. "Well, I can't really report any progress in that matter," he said. "All the company think Bishop's figures are away out of reason, and the truth is right now we are over head and ears in operations in other quarters and—well, you see how it is?"

"Yes, I think I do." Miller smoked a moment. "In fact, I told my clients last month that the matter was not absorbing your attention, and so they gave up counting on you."

Wilson so far forgot his pose that he looked up in a startled sort of way and began to study Miller's smoke wrapped profile.

"You say they are not—have not been counting on my company to—to buy their land?"

"Why, no," said Miller in accents well resembling those of slow and genuine surprise. "Why, you have not shown the slightest interest in the matter since the day you made the loan, and naturally they ceased to think you wanted the land. The only reason I called was that the note is payable today and—"

"Oh, yes, by Jove. That was careless of me. The interest is due. I knew it would be all right, and I had no idea you would bother to run down for that. Why, my boy, we could have drawn for it, you know."

Miller smiled inwardly as he looked calmly and fixedly through his smoke into the unsuspecting visage upturned to him.

"But the note itself is payable today," he said, closely on the alert for a facial collapse, "and while you or I might take up a paper for $25,000 through a bank, old fashioned people like Mr. and Mrs. Bishop would feel safer to have it done by an agent. That's why I came."

Miller in silent satisfaction saw the face of his antagonist fall to pieces like an artificial flower suddenly shattered.

"Pay the note?" gasped Wilson. "Why—"

Miller puffed at his cigar and gazed at his victim as if slightly surprised over the assumption, but his clients had not all along intended to avail themselves of that condition in their contract.

"You mean that the Bishops are ready to —" Wilson began again on another breath— "to pay us the $25,000?"

"And the interest for six months," quietly added Miller, reaching for a match on the desk. "I reckon you've got the note here. I don't want to miss my train."

Wilson was a good business man, but his Puritanical training in New England had not fitted him for wily diplomacy.

"Of course they can take up their note today if they wish," he said with alarmed frankness. "I was not counting on it though." He rose to his feet. Miller's watchful eye detected a certain trembling of his lower lip. He thrust his hands into his pockets nervously and in a tone of open irritation he said to the young man at the typewriter: "Brown, I wish you'd let up on that infernal clicking. Sometimes I can stand it and then again I can't. You can do those letters in the next room."

When the young man had gone out carrying his machine, Wilson turned to Miller. "As I understand it, you personally have no interest in the Bishop property."

"Oh, not a dollar!" smiled the lawyer. "I'm only acting for them."

"Then —" Wilson drove his hands into his pockets again— "perhaps you wouldn't mind telling me if the Bishops are on trade with other parties. Are they?"

Miller smiled and shook his head. "As their lawyer, Mr. Wilson, I simply couldn't answer that question."

The blow was well directed, and it struck a vulnerable spot.

"I beg your pardon," Wilson stammered. "I did not mean to suggest that you would betray a confidence." He reflected a moment and then he said in a mild, odd tone: "They have not actually sold out, have they?"

Miller was silent for a moment, then he answered: "I don't see any reason why I may not answer that question. I don't think my clients would object to my saying that they have not yet accepted any offer."

A look of relief suffused itself over Wilson's broad face.

"Then they are still open to accept their offer to me."

Miller laughed as if highly amused at the complication of the matter.

"They are bound, you remember, only so long as you hold their note."

"Then I tell you what to do," proposed Wilson. "Go back and tell them not to bother about payment for a few days, anyway, and that we will soon tell them positively whether we will pay their price or not. That's fair, isn't it?"

"It might seem so to a man personally interested in the deal," admitted Miller. It was the introduction to another of his blows from the shoulder. "But as lawyer for my clients I can only obey orders, like the boy who stood on the burning deck."

Wilson's face fell. The remote clicking of the typewriter seemed to grate upon his high wrought nerves, and he went and slammed the partly opened door, muttering something like an oath. On that slight journey, however, he caught an idea.

"Suppose you wire them my proposition and wait here for a reply," he suggested.

Miller frowned. "That would do no good," he said. "I'm sorry I can't explain fully, but the truth is this: I happen to know that they wish, for reasons of their own, to take up the note you hold, and that nothing else will suit them."

At this juncture Wilson lost his grip on all self possession and degenerated into the sullen anger of sharp and unexpected disappointment.

"I don't feel that we are being fairly treated," he said. "We most naturally assumed that your clients wanted to—to extend our option on the property for at least another six months. We assumed that from the fact that we had no notification from them that they would be ready to pay the note today. That's where we feel injured, Mr. Miller."

Rayburn threw his cigar into a cuspidor. His attitude of being a noninterested agent was simply a stroke of genius. Behind this plea he crouched, showing him off only to fire shots that played havoc with whatever they struck.

"I believe my clients did feel, I may say, honor bound to you to sell for the price they offered, but—now I may be mistaken—but I'm sure they were under the impression, as I was too, that you only wanted the property provided you could build a railroad from Darley to — and —"

"Well, that's true," broke in Wilson. "That's quite true."

"And," finished Miller, still behind his inevitable fortification, "they tell me that you have certainly shown indifference to the project ever since the note was given. In fact, they asked me pointedly if I thought you meant business, and I was forced conscientiously to tell them that I thought you seemed to have other fish to fry."

Wilson glared at the lawyer as if he wanted to kick him for a stupid idiot who could not do two things at once—work for the interests of his clients and not wreck his plans also. It had been a long time since he had found himself in such a hot frying pan.

"So you think the thing is off?" he said desperately, probably recalling several purchases of land he had made in the section he had expected to develop. "You think it's off?"

"I hardly know what to say," said Miller. "The old gentleman, Mr. Bishop, is a slow going old timer, but his son's rather up to date, full of energy and ambition. I think he's made up his mind to sell that property."

Wilson went to his desk, hovered over it like a dark human cloud and then reluctantly turned to the big iron safe against the wall, obviously to get the note. His disappointment was too great for concealment. With his fat pink hand on the silver plated combination bolt he turned to Miller again.

"Would you mind sitting down till I telephone one or two of the directors?"

"Not at all," said Miller, "if you'll give me a cigar and the Constitution. The Atlanta baseball team played Mobile yesterday, and I was wondering—"

"I don't keep track of such things," said Wilson, coming back to his desk with an impatient frown, to ring his call bell for the office boy.

"Oh, yes, I believe football is your national sport," said Miller with a dry smile. "Well, it's only a difference between arms and legs—while bones and casualties."

Wilson ordered the cigar and paper when the boy appeared, and leaving the lawyer suddenly he went into the room containing the telephone, closing the door after him.

In a few minutes he reappeared, standing before Miller, who was chewing a cold cigar and attentively reading. He looked up at Wilson abstractedly.

"Bully for Atlanta!" he said. "The boys made ten runs before the Mobiles had scored —"

"Oh, come down to business," said the New Englander, with a ready made smile. "Honestly, I don't believe you drowsy southerners ever will get over your habit of sleeping during business hours. It seems to be bred in the bone."

Miller laughed misleadingly. "Try to down us at a horse race and we'll beat you in the middle of the night. Hang it all, man, you don't know human nature, that's all! How can you expect me on my measly fees to make a breakdown over business I am transacting for other people?"

"Well, that may account for it," admitted Wilson, who seemed bent on being more agreeable in the light of some fresh hopes he had absorbed from the telephone wires. "See here. I've got a rock bottom proposal to make to your people. Now listen and drop that paper for a minute. By Jove! If I had to send a man from your state to attend to legal business I'd pick one not full of mental morphine."

"Oh, you wouldn't." Miller laid down the paper and assumed a posture indicative of attention roused from deep sleep. "Fire away. I'm listening."

"I already had authority to act for the company, but I thought it best to telephone some of the directors." Wilson sat down in his chair and leaned toward the lawyer. "Here's what we will do. The whole truth is we are willing to plank down the required one hundred thousand for that property provided we can lay out road there without incurring the expense of purchasing the right of way. Now, if the citizens along the proposed line want their country developed bad enough to donate the right of way through their lands, we can trade."

There was a pause. Then Miller broke it by striking a match on the sole of his boot. He looked crosseyed at the flame as he applied it to his cigar. "Don't you think your people could stand whatever value is appraised by law in case of refusals along the line?"

"Well?" he asked almost under his breath.

"No," said Wilson. "The price for the land is too steep for that. Your clients have our ultimatum. What do you say? We can advertise a meeting of citizens at Springtown, which is about the center of the territory involved, and if all agree to give the right of way it will be a trade. We can have the meeting set for today two weeks. How does that strike you?"

"I'd have to wire my clients."

"When can you get an answer?"

Miller looked at his watch. "By 5 o'clock this afternoon. The message would have to go into the country."

"Then send it off at once."

A few minutes after 5 o'clock Miller sauntered into the office. Wilson sat at his desk and looked up eagerly.

"Well?" he asked almost under his breath.

The lawyer leaned on the top of the desk. "They are willing to grant you the two weeks' time provided you sign an agreement for your firm that you will purchase their property at the price named at the expiration of that time."

"With the provision," interpolated Wilson, "that a right of way is donated."

"Yes, with that provision," Miller nodded.

"Then sit down here and write out your paper."

Miller complied as nonchalantly as if he were drawing up a bill of sale for a worn out horse.

"There you are," he said, pushing the paper to Wilson when he had finished.

Wilson read it critically. "It certainly is binding," he said. "You people may sleep during business hours, but you have your eyes open when you draw up papers. However, I don't care. I want the Bishops to feel secure. They must get to work to secure the right of way. It will be no easy job, I tell you. I know. I've struck shrewd classes of people in my life, but those up there beat the world. [illegible] have driven them in the [illegible] since the flood set in."

"You know something about them then?" said Miller, laughing to himself over the implied confession.

Wilson flushed and then admitted that he had been up that way several times looking the situation over.

"How about the charter?" asked Miller indifferently.

"That's fixed. I have already seen to that."

"Then it all depends on the right of way," remarked the lawyer as he drew a check from his pocket and handed it to Wilson. "Now get me that note," he said.

Wilson brought it from the safe.

"Turning this over cuts my option down to two weeks," he said, "but we'll know at the meeting what can be done."

"Yes, we'll know then what they can do with you," said Miller significantly as he put the canceled note in his pocket and rose to go.

CHAPTER XXIX

THE mass meeting at Springtown was a most important event. It was held in the courthouse in the center of the few straggling houses which made up the hamlet. The entire Bishop family, including the servants, attended. Pole Baker brought his wife and all the children in a new spring wagon. Darley society was represented, as the Springtown Gazette afterward put it, by the fairest of the fair, Miss Dolly Barclay, accompanied by her mother and father.

The courthouse yard was alive with groups of men eagerly talking over the situation. Every individual whose land was to be touched by the proposed road was on hand to protect his rights. Pole Baker was ubiquitous, trying to ascertain the drift of matters. He was, however, rather unsuccessful. He discovered that many of the groups ceased to talk when he entered them.

"Something's up," he told Alan and Miller in the big bare looking courtroom. "I don't know what it is, but I smell a rat, an' it ain't no little one, nuther."

"Opposition," said Miller gloomily. "I saw that as soon as I came. If they really were in favor of the road they'd be hollering it over with us."

"I'm afraid that's it," said Alan. "Joe Bartell is the most interested, and he seems to be a sort of ringleader. I don't like the way he looks. I saw him sneer at Wilson when he drove up just now. I wish Wilson hadn't put on so much style—kid gloves, plug hat and a negro driver."

"No, that won't go down with this crowd," agreed Miller. "It might in the slums of Boston, but not with these lords of the mountains. As for Bartell, I think I know what ails him. He's going to run for the legislature and thinks he can make votes by opposing us—convincing his constituency that we represent moneyed oppression. Well, he may down us, but it's tough on human progress."

At the hour appointed for the meeting to open a young man who held the office of bailiff in the county and seemed proud of his stentorian voice opened one of the windows and shouted:

"Come in to court! Come in to court!" and the motley loiterers below began to clatter up the broad stairs and fall into the seats. Joe Bartell, a short, thickset man in the neighborhood of fifty, with a florid face and a shock of reddish hair, led about twenty men up the aisle to the jury benches at the right of the stand. They were the landowners whose consent to grant the right of way was asked. Stern opposition was clearly written on the leader's brow and more or less distinctly reflected on the varying faces of his followers.

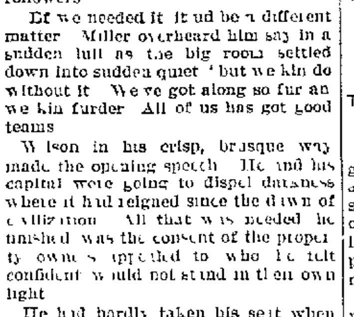

"Ef we needed it it ud be a different matter," Miller overheard him say in a sudden lull as the big room settled down into sudden quiet, "but we kin do without it. We've got along so fur an' we kin furder. All of us has got good teams."

Wilson in his crisp, brusque way made the opening speech. He and his capital were going to dispel darkness where it had reigned since the dawn of civilization. All that was needed, he finished, was the consent of the property owners approached, who he felt confident would not stand in their own light.

He had hardly taken his seat when Joe Bartell stood up. Alan and Miller exchanged ominous glances. They had at once recognized the inappropriateness of Wilson's speech and did not like the white twitching sneer on Bartell's smooth shaven face. It was as if Bartell had been for a long time seeking just such an opportunity to make himself felt in the community, and there was no doubt that Wilson's almost dictatorial speech had made a fine opening for him.

Pimples?

Pimples, boils, scrofula, sores and other disfiguring skin eruptions arise from impure blood and why take evil tasting doses of drug saturated alcohol, when you can get small, pleasant and tasteless Johnston's Tonic Capsules. They make pure blood and cure skin troubles.

Johnston's Tonic Capsules are the very best vegetable blood medicines condensed into a small easily taken, tasteless capsule, without alcohol. You can carry them in a tiny box in the pocket and take them anywhere without attracting notice. In them you get the condensed curatives of true medicinal plants, roots, barks, blossoms, leaves and fruit—the health giving qualities nature has stored in the products of field, swamp, and wildwood.

Johnston's Tonic Capsules are the surest, safest, most reliable, convenient and satisfactory medicine that can be taken to purify and enrich the blood. They unload it of every impurity and at the same time so promote the nutritive functions as to abundantly supply it with new, rich and life sustaining qualities. They make the blood pure and rich, and through pure blood the bodily structures come right, because they depend on the blood for nourishment and renewal.

For over 4 years Johnston's Tonic Capsules have been held in high esteem as a most reliable and satisfactory remedy for scrofula, rheumatism, eczema, old sores, painful swellings, kernels and enlarged glands, catarrh, scurvy, boils, liver complaint, dyspepsia, jaundice, constipation, kidney troubles and a long list of common ails and ills.

We have great confidence in this medicine, a confidence born of many years experience with it, and we make the following extraordinary offer: Send us a dollar for a large box of Johnston's Tonic Capsules or buy the same of your druggist, use half of them and if you are not satisfied mail the balance to us and we will return your money. DON'T BE FOOLED INTO DOING SOMETHING ELSE

"After what I have taken and done it is no wonder I am glad of an opportunity to recommend what cured me to my friends.

I suffered intense agony from gravel for nearly fifteen years.

For five and six weeks at a time I could not work, the pain was so great. My kidneys and bladder were in horrible shape. My back ached so I could not sleep. I had no appetite at all.

I tried about every doctor in Syracuse, but they failed to help me.

I used nearly all the advertised medicines without any benefit.

This was my discouraging condition when I began the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. I used only four bottles and I consider myself cured. I have no backache at all, no pain in passing urine, my appetite is splendid.

It helped me from the start and I gained twenty pounds in weight.

FRED HOFFMAN,
1311 Lodi St., Syracuse, N. Y.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a vegetable help to the stomach and bowels. It overcomes and permanently cures dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness and rheumatism. It is absolutely harmless and purely vegetable. It contains no narcotics or minerals in any form, no dangerous stimulants, no mercury or poisons, and is the only kidney medicine that does not constipate.

Druggists sell it in New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles.

Sample bottle—enough for trial, free by mail.

B. & O. MEN'S PICNIC.

Further Details of Their Outing to Ohio Pyle on June 20.

BALL GAME AND FIELD SPORTS.

Officials of the Pittsburg Division May Make Addresses—Connellsville Shop Men Are Not Included This Time.

As announced briefly in The Courier several days ago, 1,000 men employed at the Glenwood and P. & W. shops of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will hold an all-day outing at Ohiopyle Saturday, June 20. They will be accompanied by their wives, children and friends, and the whole assemblage for the picnic is expected to number 2,000 persons. The shops will be shut down for the day, and the men will give themselves over to a day of genuine relaxation by engaging in games and dancing. This is the first outing of the shopmen in eight years. Some time ago a few of the men talked of the matter, and it was taken up and worked to a success by J. F. Prendergast, division master mechanic. The big picnic party will be conveyed to Ohiopyle in two trains of 11 coaches each, drawn by two of the finest engines on the road. The engines will be decorated with flowers and bunting, at a cost of about $150. The trains will leave Glenwood at 7.30 A. M., will arrive at Ohiopyle about 9 o'clock, and will start on the return trip about 6 P. M. One of the best bands of Pittsburg will accompany the party. It is expected that General Superintendent W. C. Loree, Superintendent R. W. Dunn, General Foreman W. C. Carter and other officials will attend the outing long enough to say a few words to the men. There will be about 700 men from the Glenwood shops and 300 from the P. & W. shops. An interesting part of the day will be the sports. These will include three baseball games, races and other diversions. James Malaney is in charge of the baseball arrangements. He has arranged for one game with the McKeesport city team, one with the night forces at the Glenwood shops and one with the office men at Glenwood. Prizes will be given for winners in the sports. Among the prizes to be given in connection with the dancing is a $10 cake for the prize winner of the cakewalk.

A special car, carrying Assistant to General Manager W. H. Williams and C. Seden, superintendent of telegraphic department, was in town today. The party spent some time here inspecting the local offices, and then went through to Fairmont. They will return to Cumberland and Baltimore tomorrow.

Railroad Notes.

Five big trainloads of immigrants came through town over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad this morning, and two more are expected this afternoon. Those this morning were run as extra sections of trains Nos. 9 and 11. About 150 immigrants, mostly Hungarians, were unloaded here, and went to different parts of the coke region. The bulk of the foreigners, however, were bound for west of Chicago.

Salvadore Desmone and James Courtney, both engineers on the B. & O., are in Uniontown today on business.

Dan McGilton, assistant claim agent for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, was in town today looking after some business matters.

Charles Kuns, a fireman on engine No. 1696, while standing along the tank of his engine near Gibson, was struck by a large lump of coal that rolled down, striking him on the head and cutting him very badly.

Howard L. Robbins' B. & O. base ball team has arranged for a game with the transportation department of the road in Pittsburg, which will be played at Olympia Park, Versailles, next Saturday. Last Saturday a two-inning game was played. It resulted in the League-like score of 3:2 in favor of Connellsville. "Duffy" thinks his men can make the Pittsburg team lay a goose egg next Saturday. A considerable number of rooters will accompany the team from here.

Pittsburg Division Improvements.

According to plans of the Baltimore & Ohio management it is proposed to build four tracks from Wheeling Junction to Sixth street, Braddock, two tracks from Sixth street to Turtle Creek, six tracks from Turtle Creek to Demmler, four from Demmler to McKeesport passenger station, two through McKeesport and four again from the east end of that city to Versailles. Besides the extensive additions to the trackage a large freight yard is to be provided between Port Perry and Demmler. At the latter place the yard is already under construction.

A. Kearney of Pittsburg, superintendent of motive power of the Pittsburg division, is in town today on business.

Scales Placed at Friedens.

The increased traffic over the Somerset & Cambria branch has compelled the Baltimore & Ohio to erect a set of scales at Friedens, where all coal coming from the Boswell branch and north of Friedens is weighed. Trains made up at Friedens run through to Cumberland without change of crews, thereby preventing congestion in the Rockwood yards.

MOUNTAIN MATTERS.

Brief Mention of the Happenings in Springfield Township.

Normalville, June 11.—Mrs. E. E. DeHaven and Mrs. Sarah Brooks attended the 25th anniversary convention of W. M. A. of United Brethren held at Greensburg last week.

Rev. Geo. H. Flynn of Munhall gave a stereopticon entertainment in the M. E. Church Saturday evening. It was well patronized.

Misses Bessie Campbell and Josie McCullough of Scottdale are guests at the Campbell residence.

Rev. S. W. Keisler, Presiding Elder of the U. B. Church baptized 18 by immersion and two by sprinkling at Rogers' mill last Saturday afternoon.

Miss Clara DeHaven is in Braddock this week as a delegate from Normalville to the Young People's Christian Union, in session there. She was accompanied by her father, Rev. DeHaven. Miss Cora Prinkey is the delegate from Mill Run at the same gathering.

Adam Bungard, Jr., who fell off a barn roof last Thursday and fractured two ribs and received other serious injuries, is getting along nicely. Dr. Pratt is attending him.

The Methodist Quarterly Meeting, Sunday, was conducted by Rev. Geo. H. Flinn for the Presiding Elder, assisted by the pastor, Rev. S. W. Bryan, and Rev. John W Gallatin. The sermon was a good one. A very large number communed.

Alex. Kooser and family of Connellsville came up Saturday to see the former's aged mother, Mrs. Sarah Kooser. They returned Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kern of Allegheny City came up Sunday to see Mrs. Kern's sister, Mrs. William K. Shultz, who is very low with consumption.

Samuel M. Showman of Connellsville was a Sunday visitor to the Mountain Metropolis.

Rev. Cowling, D. D., of Scottdale, Rev. Pershing, D. D., of Greensburg, and Rev. J. E. McCoy of Wilmerding will be the speakers at the picnic at Rogers' mill July 4.

Everyone should attend Children's Day exercises in the U. B. Church Sunday evening.

John Early, who was so brutally beaten near Uniontown last Thursday night, was brought home Sunday. He is a pretty badly used-up man. His collar bone and several ribs are broken and is also horribly bruised and beaten otherwise.

Now that the Normalville end of the pike has been worked it behooves the Connellsville and Bullskin Supervisors to go to work at once. There are several very dangerous places on the road and should an accident happen they would be liable for a damage for neglect of duty. The County Detective will be urged to bring suit if the work is not commenced at once.

COAL TRACT OPTIONED.

About 150 Acres for Coking Purposes Taken Up Near Greensburg.

The optioning of a large and rich bed of coal in the Greensburg basin has created interest in coal and coke circles in that vicinity. It embraces the home farm of the estate of the late Philip Barnhart, containing 70 acres, and the John Ruff farm, containing about the same number of acres. The options have been taken by James Gallagher at a figure that has not yet been made public. Both tracts adjoin the possessions of the Keystone Coal & Coke Company.

The options embrace both the coal and surface. The tracts are located within a mile of the Pennsylvania railroad, and in one of the richest farming districts in that part of the county. The land, therefore, in the absence of coal, is valuable for farming purposes.

MEETING OF THE LAWYERS.

Candidacy of Judge Ewing for Head of State Association Indorsed.

A meeting of the Fayette County Bar Association was held Tuesday night in the office of J. C. Work. The candidacy of ex-Judge Nathaniel Ewing for president of the State Bar Association was unanimously indorsed. This body meets at Cambridge Springs on June 29 and 30 and July 1. Judge Umbel, John M. Core and L. H. Frasher were appointed to arrange for transportation to the Springs and lodging there. It is thought that most of the local lawyers will attend.

The annual picnic for the lawyers was fixed for the 24th inst. at Cochran Springs. Senator Boyd, W. E. Crow, A. P. Austin and D. W. McDonald were appointed to make the necessary preliminary arrangements.

As to Peaches and Apples.

It is reported that in some portions of the county at least there will be a fair peach and apple crop this season, notwithstanding the late freezes during the spring. In some places the crop may be almost up to the average, while in other places it will not be so good.

A New Boiler House.

Excavation was started Wednesday for a new boiler house for Boyts, Porter & Co. It will be located back of the works, and will be much larger than the old one.

Cylinders Blew Out.

Train No. 13 was delayed one hour Wednesday morning on account of both cylinder cocks blowing out of engine No. 846 at Indian Creek. Shifting engine No. 1218 hauled the delayed train into town.
